

Experiencing Japan

Thursday, 10 May 2007

Well, I've been here two weeks. Got to see a lot of the area, taste the food (which has been good), meet new people, and experience the culture. The culture here is completely engulfed in the buddha and shinto religion, there is no where to escape it. These religions are the foundation of the Japanese food, family, government, status, communication, education, marriages, relationships, written word, spoken word, death and life. I can't see any place that it doesn't affect the Japanese person. This is why it is so hard here to minister. This is why there is such a need for pray to break through this haze. I have been working on the Japan Prayer Network website. JPN is a way YOU can network (join, agree together) for Japan in prayer. You visit the site and become a prayer partner. I encourage you not to just read through the site but to comment and sign up to pray. Also while your there you can read Bro. Dan's Blog, there he explains some of what has been in my pictures. Speaking of pictures here is another batch Click here.

Please leave some comment on what you see, and if you have any questions this is a great place to ask them.
